have promised to be present at the annual Charity Ball, which will be held on Tuesday night in the Walderf-Astoria's extensive dancing suite that includes four ballrooms. The ball will be formally opened by the Mayor and Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel. This ball has long been an institution in New York and is the model for many others held here and in other cities, but it never seems to become commonplace owing to the efforts made by the managers of the Nursery and Child's Hospital, which institution will be the beneficiary, as it has been for more than half a century. Numerous dinners are to precede the ball and among the hostesses will be Mrs. Charles F. Roe, Mrs. Frank S. Witherbee, Mrs. Waldron Williams, Mrs. Edward F. Darrell, Mrs. George D. Yeomans and Mrs. Mayo Smith.

Lord and Lady Aberdeen, who will attend the ball, will earlier in the evening be the chief guests at dinner of Mrs. Frank Sullivan Smith at the Plaza, among the other guests being some forty of this year's debutantes. a business proposition is well understood by those who compose society, and it is the same the world over, with only perhaps a trifle more of commercialism apparent in this age of commercialism. From now until the season is over there are few nights left unfilled on the engagement pad of the popular hostess and the equally popular hostess and the equally popular dinner guest.

As had been anticipated, the talk of the pre-Lenten weddings has begun, and this week there are to be a number of these entertainments. It would not be fulsome praise to say that the entertainment of the Junior League, which last week held in the attention of New York society for three nights and two matinees at the Waldorf-Astoria, was by far the most successful and artistle ever given by that organization. It was a new sensation to see the characters depicted in Miss Henry's movie meladrama in the audience as well as on the reels, and in the audience as well as on the reels, and among them are the beautiful dances were given with a precision and grace that placed them far beyond amatter efforts. For that matter, why should not the young people of society become expert dancers, with scarcely a day or night that is not devoted to terpsichorean pleasures, summer and winter?

It can be said that the difficult of the fund being raised to supply clothing and comforts for British and allied soldiers and sailors.
